Consultation gave better understanding of the stakeholders' needs

- In addition to input to the roadmap itself, the NBM roadmap consultation have increased our insight in what topics that are most relevant for stakeholders
- A separate document "Summary of the stakeholder consultation, including TSOs answers how to consider the feedback" is available on the NBM website

In general, more information is asked for

- Concrete effects for the stakeholders
 - IT systems, business processes and business strategies
 - Product descriptions of the balancing energy markets
 - Communication with new balancing platforms
- Better reasoning and analysis
- Several specific issues and questions

How do we plan to meet needs to stakeholder dialogue?

- The updated roadmap report hopefully meets some of the needs, but...

We do not have all answers

There will be changes

Memos and webinars will address more specific topics

- Memos on more specific topics can easily be updated based on knowledge from further work, new information and based on response and questions from stakeholders. Two memos already added:
 - Memo on Connection to European platforms
 - Memo on Process for activating products
- We are also planning webinars for Q1
 - Webinar on updated roadmap
 - Webinar on Connection to European platforms
 - Webinar on Process for activating products
 - Webinar on single price model

Future communication and update of roadmap – NBM web will be the source

Easy to find information on different building blocks

Better structure

More easy to find status, descriptions, memos, etc sorted

Information will be "dynamic"

"Continuous" updates based on stakeholder input, further work, new information

We do not plan to update the roadmap report, but maintain updated information about the building blocks on NBM at the website.
